

Triumph of Love

Which exerts greater influence over our lives: the head or the heart? Set during that great age of reason, the Enlightenment, The Triumph of Love pits the two greatest forces of the human condition, reason and passion, against each other and produces very touching and humorous results. This tuneful and charming chamber musical was first produced in 1997. Based on an 18th Century play by the French comedic genius Marivaux, it follows the twisting trail of love blazed by a young princess who masquerades as a man to capture the heart of the one she loves. A perfect combination of delightful music and a charming (often hilarious) book, this award-winning musical comedy celebrates the charm, silliness, passion and outright joy of falling in love.
